42 Applicants For Tinley Rural Carrier Job

There has been a rush of applications for the job of rural mail carrier out of the Tinley Park post office, over forty applications having been made. The examination for the job is scheduled to be held in Chicago Saturday of this week.

Tinley Auxiliary Unit Installs First Officers

Erna Wallin, secretary of the Tinley Park American Legion Auxiliary Unit was organized and started on its way Friday evening, January 15th. They were given a hearty welcome by representatives of units from Homewood, Harvey, Dolton, Chicago Heights, Woodlawn, Paul Gaul Unit, and others, there numbering over fifty visitors.

Mrs. Glenn Suthers, our 4th District Director, conducted the meeting, which consisted of initiation of members, election of officers, and installation of officers.

After hearing several very interesting speakers, the following officers were installed:

Mrs. F. Rowden, president; Mrs. F. Ceithaml, 1st vice-pres.; Mrs. R. Freitag, 2nd vice-pres.; Mrs. E. Wallin, sec.; Mrs. H. Burg, treas.; Mrs. T. Swisher, chaplain; Mrs. M. Felten, historian; Mrs. M. West, sergeant-at arms.

Our next meeting will be Friday, February 5th, at 8 o'clock at the Community Hall, and we urge all eligible women to come and join us. We have seventeen members, and would like to have as many as possible join us now while we are new.

Tinley Organizes 22 Piece Band

A community band of 22 members has been organized at Tinley Park with Edwin Hirsch in charge as director. Mr. Wiessner well known Blue Island musician is also assisting in the instruction of this band.

TINLEY GARDEN CLUB NEWS

Here I have planted the daffodil,
And there the zinnia seed,
On the breast of that gently sloping mound

Vari-hued asters will feed.
Before this staid gray garden wall
Scarlet poppies will dance,
In a golden flame the marigolds
Will bend to the wind's advance.
Oh, west wind cease your bickerings;

Oh, north wind still your strife:
That south and east wind both may call
My seed to joyous life.

—Rose Dulsky
The Tinley Park Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. George Hartman on Friday, January 15th. About fifteen members were present.

Several ladies read interesting papers on trees.

The club decided not to enter the Flower Show at the Municipal Pier this year.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Hug has recovered from her injuries received in an automobile accident; also that Mrs. Harry Mager and Mrs. Betty Berg are convalescing nicely.

It was decided to start a "Gypsy Basket", and to pass it on to the members of the Garden Club.

After the meeting was adjourned delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Note—The Blue Island Garden Club invites the Tinley Park Garden Club to be its guest on Friday evening, January 22nd at eight o'clock in the Sunday school room of the Congregational church, when the lantern slides showing the Illinois roadsides, as they are, and offering suggestions for improvement will be shown.

The Congregational Church of Blue Island is located on York st. just west of Western Ave., and opposite of the Public Library.

A series of free lectures will be given at the Garfield Park Conservatory from Feb. 1st to March 10.

Orland Legion Post To Hold Hard Time Dance at Worth

The Orland Park Post 526 of the American Legion is planning for an old fashioned hard time dance to be held in the Hildebrand hall at Worth on Saturday night, January 30th. There will be good music. Entree at 8:30 p. m. Everyone invited.

Surveyors Set Line for S. W. Highway at Alpine

Surveyors from the Cook County Highway Department have been engaged for several weeks surveying for the route of the Southwest Highway from Orland southwest to Alpine and to the junction with the Wolf road. As surveyed the route will run thru the center of the new house of C. F. Colcord at Alpine.

It is understood that Cook County is ready to finish the work of paving the Southwest highway thru this section this spring just as soon as weather conditions will permit.

Orland Adopts Stickers In Place Of License Plates

The village board of Orland Park has adopted a new innovation in the matter of vehicle license. Instead of the special license plates formerly used, lithographed stickers are to be used instead during 1932. These license stickers will be along the lines of those used in Chicago. Mayor A. J. Cermak of Chicago had recently asked all Cook County villages to adopt the sticker system.

Coroner's Jury Asks Murderer Be Apprehended

A coroner's inquest was held Wednesday morning at Frankfort in the fatal shooting of Wm. Schmooch, 56 year old attendant of the McMullen oil station at the junction of the Lincoln highway and route 51, who was fatally shot during a holdup January 10th. No trace of the slayer has been found thus far.

Miss Elizabeth McMullen, 18 year old daughter of the service station owner, Robert McMullen of Chicago, was the main witness.

The coroner's jury recommended that the slayer be apprehended and bound over to the grand jury.

Aid of Chicago Asked to Solve Murder Mystery

Dr. E. A. Kingston, coroner of Will County has asked the aid of Chicago authorities in identifying the body of a man believed to have been a gang murder victim. He was found New Year's day in the woods north of Frankfort. The man was in hunting costume. It is believed that he was lured on a supposed hunting trip by gang associates and then killed. He was shot with a shot gun.

He was about 40 years old 5 feet 5 inches tall, weight 145 pounds and was of dark complexion.

Will Co. Tax Bills Show Cut

The taxpayers of Will County received good news this week when the announcement was made at the courthouse that the tax payers of Will County will pay $981,968 less in taxes this year than last year, due to cuts in assessed valuations and reduced appropriations by the taxing bodies of the county.

Back taxes this year are over 3 times as much as last year. The amount due this year is $95,293.73 as compared with $20,680.32 last year.

The total amount of tax to be collected in Frankfort township this year is $78,450.12 as compared to $86,595.47 last year.

In New Lenox township the tax bill this year is $81,433.19 as compared with last year's bill of $94,842.82, showing a reduction of over $12,000.

To Hold Card And Bunco Party at Orland

A card and bunco party will be held at the Daniel Corner 143rd and Keene avenue on Wednesday night, January 27th.

Musical Notes

TINLEY PARK LADIES CHORUS
Alexander Corrado Elizabeth Corrado
Director Accompanist

The Tinley Park Ladies Chorus has started rehearsals on four attractive and outstanding musical sketches to be presented before the public in group form early in April. The characters of each sketch will be individualized by beautiful music and elaborate costumes. This will be a rare treat, for it is believed to be the first concert of this kind ever put on by local talent. A definite date has not yet been decided on, but the affair will be held at the school auditorium and half of the proceeds will be turned into the school fund. New members are always welcome. Meetings are held every Wednesday evening at the school.

Second Will Co., Bank Fails; New One to Open

The second large bank to close in Will County was the Joliet National Bank, which failed to open Tuesday morning.

A new bank, The Peoples National Bank of Joliet will open the early part of February according to an announcement made this week. The new institution will take the place of the old Will County National Bank which closed sometime ago and in which quite a number of people in this section were interested.

Mokena People Exhibit Relics at Historical Meeting

Interest in the Will County Historical Society meetings is gradually increasing. At the meeting held in the Joliet Public Library Tuesday evening, old time dishes and china ware and old time firearms were on display. Captain Maxwell of Pileher Park had a very interesting collection of old time guns and revolvers and gave an interesting talk about them. Wm. Semmler of Mokena also exhibited gun relics from the Don C. Hall collection of firearms. Some of these guns are over 100 years old. A bayonet picked up on the battle field of Bull Run by Mr. Hall, was an interesting relic. Mr. Hall who resides at Mokena is much interested in collecting objects of historical value.

Mrs. E. P. Krapp and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler of Mokena exhibited a number of quaint and valuable old time dishes and china-ware. Mr. Semmler exhibited some Copeland chinaware formerly owned by his mother, Mrs. John Semmler. Mrs. Semmler exhibited a large brass preserving kettle used by her mother, Mrs. John Oestreich in the early days.

Nelson Lynk of Manhattan exhibited a number of unique articles, among them being an apple pitted with cloves. The apple dates back from 1889 and is in an excellent state of preservation. Mr. Lynk described a hunting scene of the early days in New Lenox township in which Ward and Mills Knickerbocker figured quite prominently.

The Historical Society plans a very special program for their February meeting in connection with the bi-centennial celebration of the birth of George Washington. Chas. Sylvester of Mokena whose grandfather served in congress when George Washington was president, will have part in the program.

It is hoped that every community in Will County will co-operate with the Will County Historical Society in creating a live interest in and preserving the early history of the county.

Hadley To Start Campaign Next Monday

With various factions lining up in the coming state primary campaign political circles are interested in the position to be taken by Chas. W. Hadley, of Wheaton, candidate for attorney general.

Hadley, long as assistant attorney general and recently resigned as chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission, is the only candidate in the race with a state wide organization.

Four years ago, he campaigned the state and established organizations in every one of the 102 counties in the state. He retired when the famous Emmerson-Carlstrom conference resulted in Carlstrom retiring from the gubernatorial race in favor of Emmerson. Hadley then withdrew to permit Carlstrom to run for re-nomination. It was understood at that time that he might have had the nomination for U. S. Senator had he indicated a willingness to take it.

Now that political leaders are trying to determine if there are to be regular states, they are wondering where Hadley might be willing to throw his strength. Hadley himself has given no indication of any intention of being identified with any slate. In his formal announcement, he said:

"I seek the nomination not as a candidate of any faction but as a candidate seeking the suffrage of all members of the party."

Meanwhile, plans are being made for him to begin a state-wide speaking tour, beginning next Monday in the southern part of the state.

Mokena Walker Supporters Sign Up Petition Quickly

Petitions for the re-nomination of John Walker as representative of the forty-first district have been circulated and signed up in Mokena the past week.

Mokena P. T. A. Notes

The next meeting of the Mokena P. T. A., will be held Tuesday afternoon, January 26 at 3:30 p. m., at the school gym. We would like to have all mothers present.

Mokena Garden Club Sponsors Charity Dance

A small but representative gathering of Mokena citizens assembled at the high school auditorium Wednesday night in response to a call sponsored by the Mokena Garden Club members. Mrs. L. G. Bruder, and Mrs. Herman Schweser presided, and a free discussion was indulged in by those present, the subject being possible relief necessities and the best methods of procedure in raising and distributing benefits to the needy of the community.

Among those present was Supervisor Wm. Kampe of Frankfort, who gave much information with regard to the township relief fund and its distribution and individual cases where relief has been extended.

Many proffers of help were made. The Garden Club to act as a committee of investigation to arrange for charity functions, benefits and donations, and those listed for service to be subject to their call at any time.

An old fashioned dance was proposed and arranged for, the date to be Saturday, January 30th at the St. Mary Hall in Mokena. This occasion to be followed by a series of entertainments and other social affairs, tickets for all to be at reasonable prices and the entire gross receipts to be placed in the emergency relief fund.

The meeting was a real "get-together" community affair, and reflected much credit upon its sponsors, the Garden Club, and the "Mokena spirit" of neighborliness.

Petitions For New School in Frankfort Township Dismissed

Last Saturday a hearing was held in the country school in the Stellwagon school district east of Frankfort to consider the petition made for a new school by residents of Lincoln Estates, a McIntosh sub division east of Frankfort. County Superintendent of schools August Maue was present. He pointed out that as the assessed valuation of the school district in question is only $270,000 and as only 1 per cent can be levied for school purposes not enough money can be raised for a new school in addition to the one now existing, also that it would be impossible to float a bond issue. It was further brought out that it requires $1400 a year to maintain the present school and that the highest amount that can be raised is $2100 which would not be enough to pay for an extra school teacher.

The Stellwagon school has over 35 pupils enrolled now and its full capacity of 47 pupils is expected by the end of the school term. It was shown that there are 24 one room country schools in Will County having a like number of pupils enrolled and 12 one room schools with even a larger number of pupils enrolled.

The matter of an additional new school for the Stellwagon district has been dropped for the present. Miss Mattel of Joliet is the present teacher in the district named and is a very efficient teacher and is well liked.

Miss Nellie Gougar Member of Pioneer Family, Passes On

Miss Nellie Gougar, member of one of the pioneer families of New Lenox, died at the old Gougar home in New Lenox Monday following a short illness. She had resided in the home in which she died forty-one years. She attained the age of sixty-nine years.

Miss Gougar was the grand daughter of William Gougar, the first white settler to locate on the banks of Hickory Creek in Will County.

In August 1930, the Gougar family celebrated the 100th anniversary of this settlement. Arrangements were made for the celebration by Miss Gougar who had prepared for it for several years. She presented a history of the Gougar family at the reunion.

Miss Gougar was very much interested in the early history of New Lenox and was very well posted on this subject.

She was a great lover of flowers and in the summer she always had a gorgeous array of flowers growing about her home. She cultivated the blooms with much interest and care.

Surviving her are two brothers, Wm. J. Gougar of Joliet; Frank of Tacoma, Washington; a niece, Mrs. T. L. Stout and a nephew, Walter B. Gougar, both of New Lenox.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon in the Grace Episcopal church in New Lenox with the Rev. Leigh Applegate of Hobart Indiana, the first pastor of this church officiating. Burial was in Oak wood cemetery, Joliet.

Miss Bernice Fox New Lenox, Dies

The many friends of Miss Bernice Fox of New Lenox, were grief stricken when the news of her death was reported. She died in the St. Joseph hospital, Joliet on January 15th after a short illness. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fox. She leaves to mourn her death, her parents, two sisters, Eileen and Eloise, one brother Roy, her grandfather, William Jahanke, her grandmother, Mrs. Emily Fox, a host of young people who knew her as a classmate and friend, and many other friends. Bernice was 16 years, 3 months and 24 days old. The funeral took place Monday afternoon at 2 p. m., at the St. Peter, Lutheran church in Joliet. The Rev. Carl Kurth officiated. Burial was in Woodlawn Memorial Park.

Primary Petitions Circulated For Joseph Keig

Primary petitions were circulated here this week for Joseph Keig, of Lockport, and Joliet attorney, who will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for state representative from the forty-first senatorial district.

Mr. Keig was born in Will County near Romeoville. He attended Knox college and Northwestern University, working his way through college by teaching school and serving with the International News Service. He passed the state bar examination in 1919 and has engaged in the private practice of law since that time.

During the World War Mr. Keig was a lieutenant in the air corps and is now prominent in Legion activities.

Hired Man Tells Of Being "Shot" But It Was Booze

Otto Trassmer, middle aged hired man working for Herman Barlewort of Frankfort township, caused quite a furor five o'clock Tuesday morning when he came to the Barlewort home in a dazed condition and with his head bleeding from wounds and telling a story of having been waylaid and shot while walking along the highway from Frankfort to the Barlewort farm. Mr. Barlewort called the Will County sheriff's office at Joliet and two deputies came out to investigate. Trassmer stuck to his hold up story and about being shot but when the blood was washed off it was found the man had only suffered bruises caused by falling along side the highway while drunk.

Mr. Barlewort feeling that the man got drunk in the Frankfort speakeasies, says he notified the proprietors that if his man got drunk again he would report them to the prohibition officers.

The case was broadcasted on the radio from a Joliet broadcasting station and the story got mixed and made the rounds that Mr. Barlewort had been held up and shot and he was much surprised when anxious friends kept calling up on the phone to inquire about the affair.

Mokena Car Owners To Petition Board To Stone Street

The half a block from the A. E. Wichter corner to the Herman Schweser corner in Mokena has more automobile owners than any other half a block in the village and yet this street is a mud hole the auto owners claim and is in such a bad condition that they cannot get their cars in or out of the garages at times. These auto owners say they are paying their special auto license and yet are not getting a passable street. These auto owners are going to petition the village board to stone this street and if no action is taken the auto owners threaten to refuse to pay their 1932 vehicle licenses.

There are 12 automobiles in garages in this half a block.

Mokena Band Seeks More Members

A very strong effort is being put forth to make the Mokena Community Band a live local musical organization, but more members are needed, so an invitation is being extended to all those interested in band music and who would like to see Mokena have a real band, to join. Anyone wishing to do so get in touch with Don Hall at the News-Bulletin office or at his home in Mokena. Band practice every Friday night at 8 o'clock. If you play an instrument come out. If you do not play, but are interested and would like to learn, you are also welcome.

The Path To Success

The "Path to Success", from the financial standpoint is clearly defined. But precaution is necessary. If you would follow it straight and true, you must be guided by men who know its many tempting crossroads, men whose experience as bankers have taught them that conservatism in money matters is the only SAFE means of making progress.

This Bank's officers are qualified to serve you in that capacity! And they gladly welcome your call for Advice on Investments, Savings or any problem you have concerning Money and Your Future.

FALL ON STREET REVIVES MEMORY

Accident in Chicago Loop Is Blessing to New Yorker.

New York.—A man clad in a ragged suit and a dirty white sweater started to cross State street in Chicago one night recently. He was just another bit of human flotsam and nobody paid very much attention when he leaped from in front of a speeding automobile, stumbled and rapped his head on the curb.

The fellow got up and rubbed his head in a bewildered manner. Traffic in the loop swirled on, but the man in the disheveled clothes sought a side street—he was suddenly and unaccountably ashamed of his appearance. Faint flickers of memory began to stir in an awakened mind, writes Tom Petey in the Chicago Tribune.

And that is why Harry G. Havery, wealthy Westchester county real estate and insurance man, who had been given up for dead after he dropped from sight on a fishing trip in Long Island sound eight months ago, was back with his family in time for a happy Christmas. Mr. Havery was haggard, his cheeks were thin, and he could remember little of his adventures in aphasia.

He Finds Himself.

He had found himself a few hours after having suffered the blow on his head in Chicago when his erratic memory told him who he was as his brain began to function normally. He immediately began hurried preparations to return home.

The Westchester man who came back from the dead is thirty-eight years old and a step-son of the late Charles Purdy, pioneer land owner in New York city's most fashionable suburban district.

Mr. Havery had lived for years with his wife and four children near White Plains. On May 2 he went fishing off Rye beach, and when he did not return home that night, a search disclosed his boat anchored 100 feet from the shore, and evidence that he had fallen into the rock-studded waters. All efforts to find any trace of him failed. He had been happy at home. His health and business affairs were in good condition. The family felt he had suffered an accident and slowly gave up hope.

Wires Brother-in-Law.

Mr. Havery's brother-in-law, Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel Faile, received a telegram signed with the missing man's name. A telephone call to Chicago followed and $100 was telegraphed for Havery's expenses home.

"I do not know where I have been nor what I have been doing all these months I have been away," said Mr. Havery at his home.

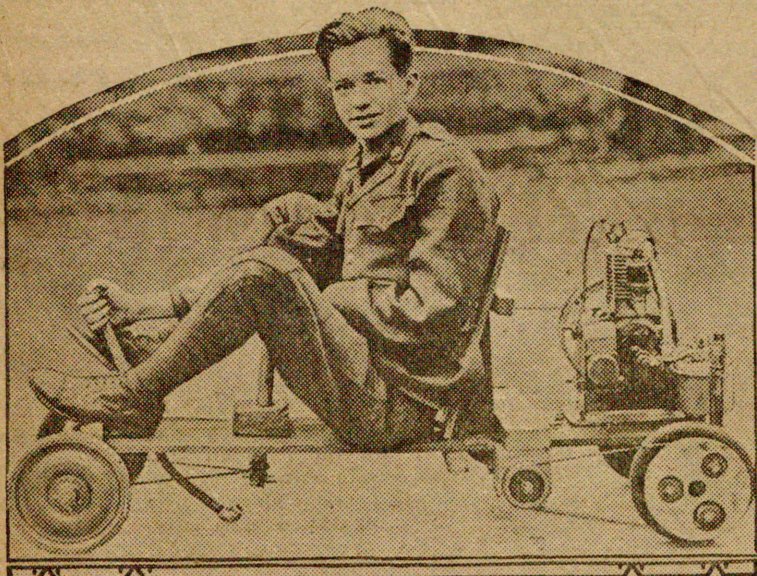

"Things were mostly blank after I

"It Runs Like the Dickens," Says Alton

Alton Cobb, student at Boys' high school, Atlanta, Ga., found an old cream separator lying about his home, and decided, since it wasn't serving its original purpose, it might be put to some other good use. He converted it into an automobile engine and now has the contraption that you see above. It uses a quart of gas and, as Alton says, "runs like the dickens."

HUMAN LABELS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

He has saved no lives, made no great discoveries, accomplished nothing worthy of comment in the work he has been doing. He is just a good fellow of the most ordinary sort who will add no luster to any organization to which he may become attached.

"It seems incredible," Deems Taylor says in "Vanity Fair," "that men should struggle and suffer and lose sleep and work overtime for the privilege of sticking a small bit of scarlet ribbon on their coat lapels, but they will and do."

One of the most pathetic and yet one of the most amusing incidents of my college experience was that of two young greenhorns who registered for a short course in plumbing, or testing milk, or sewing or something of that sort. They were eager to join something it made little matter what. This eagerness attracted the attention of a group of obliging undergraduates and they proceeded to pledge the two aspirants to fraternal honors. They dressed them up in grotesque garb, they hung long plaid ribbons on them, they stationed them at street corners to be the laughing stock of passers-by, and the two boys submitted to it all with the utmost cheerfulness if not eagerness because they had the itch ultimately to be able to attach a key or a pin or a badge of some sort to their vest fronts. Their grief and humiliation when they at last discovered that it was all a hoax was pitiful to see. They wept because they had been cruelly cheated out of a much-desired honor.

Most of our decorations are little more than labels.

fell out of my boat while trying to pull up the anchor. I struck my head then. I have a vague remembrance of having worked on a farm near Chicago.

"I recall the fall I suffered while walking along the street in Chicago. That brought back some of my memory. I began to search my pockets and discovered the suit I was wearing had been bought in New York. That helped me to recall my identity. When I finally could remember I was appalled at my appearance."

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lane Bode

MARRYING CLERK IS PROSPERING ON JOB

New York City Official Finds Couples Generous

New York.—The job of deputy city clerk, which carries with it the duty of marrying couples in the municipal building, was disclosed as one of the city's most profitable jobs when Counsel Samuel Seabury showed the Hofstadter legislative committee, in a public hearing, that James J. McCormick has been making $16,000 a year out of it in addition to his salary of $8,500.

Almost every couple he marries—and he marries about 300 a week—make him a little gift after the ceremony, McCormick said. They give him from $1 to $10, and rarely $20. Those gifts and his salary enabled him to bank $229,000 between 1925 and October 19 of this year.

His own estimate of his "gift" income, however, lacked $150,000 of accounting for his total deposits in that period and McCormick confessed himself unable to explain that sum.

The questions Mr. Seabury asked the deputy clerk made it clear that the counsel thought McCormick had been getting "gifts" of $20 much oftener than he did the smaller sums, and that a larger income from that source would account for the $150,000. McCormick denied this, however.

The examination of Deputy Clerk

McCormick's bank accounts revealed for the first time what a profitable office the "marrying clerk" has.

McCormick said he has been in the city employ ten and a half years and has been Tammany leader in the Twenty-second Assembly district for thirty-eight years.

His municipal job has only two duties—signing bonds and performing marriages.

The "marriage chapel" in the municipal building is a room about 100 by 15 feet, fitted up with two palms furnished by the park department, a desk, and a couple of chairs on a platform.

"Did you ever ask for money when marrying a couple?" Mr. Seabury asked.

"I never have."

"Wasn't there a little drawer in that desk, and wasn't it your practice to keep that drawer open and have a $20 bill in plain sight?"

"No, sir."

When TEETHING makes HIM FUSSY

One of the most important things you can do to make a teething baby comfortable is to see that little bowels do their work of carrying off waste matter promptly and regularly. For this nothing is better than Castoria, a pure vegetable preparation specially made for babies and children. Castoria acts so gently you can give it to young infants to relieve colic. Yet it is always effective, for older children, too. Remember, Castoria contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics—is absolutely harmless. When your baby is fretful with teething or a food upset, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Be sure you get genuine Castoria with the name:

When the intolerable pains of rheumatism or aches or neuritis or lumbago drive you nearly mad... don't forget the marvelous heat Nature put into red peppers. For it is this penetrating heat that relieves all pain as it soothes and gets down under the skin, seeming to clear up inflammation instantly. It is this genuine red pepper's heat that is now contained in an ointment called Rowles Red Pepper Rub. As you rub it in you can feel relief come. There's nothing better for breaking up a dangerous chest cold, either. All druggists sell Rowles Red Pepper Rub in convenient jars.

Gaelic Sign Too Attractive

Merchants of Dingwall, Scotland, decided that during the annual Mod week last year they would make a hit with visitors by having all signs over their stores in Gaelic. One non-Gaelic business man got a neighbor to write an advertisement of the excellent quality of his wares. When a crowd stormed the place the merchant learned that his sign advertised that any customer coming into the store at a certain time would get "three free drinks." And down came the sign in record time.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

J. Paul Clayton, chairman of the state planning commission, has announced five broad objectives of state planning. These include: determination of the most sensible type of utilization of land areas; to direct the development of a second distribution and localization of industry and population; to determine the elements which go into the pattern and plan of the typical urban-rural area; to maintain a high standard; to complete a comprehensive plan program which will mean the systematic co-ordinated and economical development and proper conservation of all Illinois' vast resources.

R. C. Ross, extension specialist in agricultural economics at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, has announced that the 22 per cent cut which Illinois farmers made this fall in their winter wheat acreage speeds up a downward adjustment in acreage which has been going on almost without interruption since 1919. The 22 per cent reduction for Illinois is more than twice as much as the average reduction for the entire country.

Chief Highway Engineer Frank T. Sheets has announced that Illinois highway division has under way plans for constructing the equivalent of 1,200 miles of new two-lane concrete roads in 1932. It is estimated that this extensive state-wide program will give employment to between 30,000 and 35,000 men. The highway department will insist on the employment of local labor whenever possible at a fair rate of wages.

Barney Cohen, director of the department of labor, has announced that the free employment offices, conducted in Chicago and in fifteen downstate cities, succeeded during 1931 in placing 95,389 at work. The free employment branch of the department, in spite of the increase demands upon its facilities, operated at a saving of more than $26,000.

Lewis B. Springer, superintendent of the division of forestry, attended the second annual meeting of the Central States Forestry congress held at Cincinnati, Ohio. This congress was made up of delegates from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Missouri, Ohio, and Tennessee to consider the problems and stimulate forestry in the Central Wood lot region. Mr. Springer was elected to the board of directors for a period of three years.

At the annual convention of the Illinois state's attorneys which was held in Chicago, Wirt Herrick, Clinton, was elected president. E. J. Coyle, Carrollton, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Warden James A. White, of the southern Illinois penitentiary at Chester, suffered scalp wounds as the result of a recent automobile collision.

During the holidays, thirty members of the University of Illinois Men's Glee club made a concert tour of central Illinois. The club was under the direction of Ray Dvorak.

The Illinois state poultry show at Quincy, January 6-10 had exhibits from Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota and Wisconsin in addition to the large number of entries from Illinois. Rabbits as well as poultry were displayed.

The need of wise financial planning, the economical distribution of income, and provision for the future will be emphasized during Thrift week, nationally observed the third week in January. Today, in this period of financial stress and unemployment, the need for thrift is more apparent, and vital to the lives of individuals. The library extension division, Springfield, includes in its collection many books, aiding in the wise expenditures of one's money. Books such as Donham's "Spending the Family Income," and Blodgett's "Financial Independence: How to Win It" may be borrowed from the division either through the local library or on individual request.

J. R. Skiles of Evanston was elected president of the Illinois State Teachers' association at the annual meeting held in Springfield, December 28, 29 and 30. John A. Hayes, Peoria, is the retiring president. Other officers elected were: George O. Smith, Princeton, first vice president; V. B. Jeffries, Charleston, second vice president; W. C. Hamblin, Lincoln, third vice president. A. Lulu Hill, East St. Louis, was elected to the executive committee.

The state division of architecture has received bids on general contracts for four buildings at Manteno State hospital, representing an outlay of $1,000,000.

Director Leo. H. Howe, of the department of trade and commerce, has announced that the insurance division, one of the largest revenue producing agencies of the state government, turned into the state treasury during 1931, $8,637,376.57. This amount is only $40,000 less than the collectors for the previous year.

The Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union monthly broadcast will be heard in the National Farm Home Hour on Wednesday, January 20, and will feature a prominent speaker on agricultural subjects.

Another episode in the experiences of the United States Forest Rangers will be given on Thursday, January 21. This series, inaugurated this month, is designed to arouse greater interest in forest fire prevention and protection.

Many Government Speakers on Air

Five hundred and fifteen broadcast hours were utilized by the United States government over the networks of the National Broadcasting company during 1931. M. H. Aylesworth, president of the company, reports.

The United States Department of Agriculture made the greatest use of radio during the year. Exactly 254 officials of this department gave 581 talks before the microphone. Most of these talks were broadcast in the National Farm and Home Hour, broadcast each week day at 11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., central standard time.

President Hoover, Mr. Aylesworth's report shows, spoke 29 times, which is the greatest number of times any President has been heard over the radio in one year; Vice President Curtis made three radio speeches; the chief justice, Charles Evans Hughes, spoke five times.

Every member of the cabinet faced the microphone at least once during the year.

Thirty-two members of the senate made 52 radio addresses, and members of the house spoke 25 times.

America's three service bands were heard in 241 contests, many of which were in the National Farm and Home Hour. The Army band broadcast 103 times, the Marine band 71 times, and the Navy band 67 times.

Numerous officials of foreign governments also spoke over the networks.

Since his inauguration President Hoover has made 63 radio addresses. In his seven years as President, Calvin Coolidge spoke only 37 times over the radio. Many of President Hoover's addresses were made directly from the White House.

All known records for a continuous broadcast were broken recently when Gene and Glenn were on the air from WTAM in Cleveland for more than seven hours in the interest of the Cleveland Christmas fund program.

An admirer of Lowell Thomas, sent him a heater for his automobile. "Hope this will keep you from catching cold," read an accompanying note. Next day he got a dozen handkerchiefs—"in case he did."

Elaine Paige, style expert of Women's Radio Review, mentioned in a talk a new style knitted beret that could be made at home, and received three thousand requests for directions.

"I've gone ping-pong mad!" says Odette Myrtil, orchestra leader, mistress of ceremonies, and violin and vocal soloist of the Gaytees orchestra program. She has turned the cellar of her Douglaston (L. I.) home into a game room and installed a doubles tournament table, where a championship match is in full swing—Douglaston vs. Great Neck.

Trends in dairy production is being reviewed in the National Farm and Home Hour by J. B. Shepard, economist in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Lesson for January 24

JESUS AND THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

LESSON TEXT—John 4:1-42.
GOLDEN TEXT—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Helps a Stranger.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Befriends a Foreigner.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Talking with a Samaritan Woman.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Jesus Deals with Sinners.

I. Jesus at Jacob's Well (vv. 1-6). The growing popularity of Jesus aroused the envious opposition of the Pharisees which obliged him to leave Judea and go into Samaria. There was another way to reach Galilee, on the eastern side of the Jordan, the one used by many Jews to avoid contact with the despised Samaritans. He "must needs go through Samaria" in order to find this poor sinful woman and the needy citizens of Sychar. The great necessity which was upon him was to seek and to save that which was lost (Luke 19:10).

II. Jesus' Testimony to the Samaritan Woman (vv. 7-26).

1. A favor asked (vv. 7-9). Jesus tactfully made a request which appealed to the woman's sympathy. Not only did the thirst of the weary traveler appeal to her, but the fact that he, being a Jew, asked a favor of her, showed his sympathy for her. In introducing the conversation, he referred to that which was uppermost in her mind; namely, water. This was the divine Teacher's point of contact. He soon passed from earthly water to the water of everlasting life which was in himself.

2. Jesus' tender dealing with this woman (vv. 10-15). He first appealed to her curiosity by declaring, "If thou knewest the gift of God" (v. 10). He knew the deep unrest of the soul of this sinful woman as she went on her way. He knew that if she really knew him, she would believe in him and be saved from her sins. Therefore, he first sought to get her attention. This appeal to her curiosity was followed by a promise which directed her attention to her deepest needs. There is a consciousness of deep need in every soul. In her efforts to satisfy her nature, this poor woman respected neither the law of God nor the rights of men. The deepest need of the soul can only be satisfied by Jesus Christ. The woman's reply, "Sir, give me this water that I thirst not," is the inarticulate cry of every human heart.

3. The woman convicted of her sins (vv. 15-19). Jesus succeeded in arousing her interest, but she did not really understand what the water of life is, she must be convicted of her sins. He skillfully gave the command which brought her face to face with the facts of her life that she was unwilling to confess. She did not argue with him, but became a humble inquirer. The soul must be convicted of its sin before there can be conversion.

4. The problem of worship submitted to Christ (vv. 20-24). This she did as soon as she perceived him to be a prophet. This indicates that he was succeeding in bringing her mind to spiritual things. Jesus, knowing the inner life of this woman, told her of the glad time, even then present, when true worshippers could hold intercourse with God anywhere. He showed her that the place of worship is unimportant, that the all-important thing is to have the true conception of God as brought through the Jews. He exposed the folly of a religion of form only, and showed that acceptable worship depends upon the condition of the heart.

5. The woman of Samaria witnessing for Christ (vv. 27-39). When the disciples perceived that Jesus talked with the woman, they marveled, yet they hesitated to ask him for an explanation. The woman left her water pot and went into the city and said, "Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?" As soon as she was converted she became an enthusiastic missionary.

III. Jesus Testifying to the Citizens of Sychar (vv. 40, 41).

The woman's testimony brought the request from the Samaritans that Jesus tarry with them. He abode with them two days. Though they heard the woman's testimony, their belief was due to Christ's own word (v. 41).

IV. The Samaritans Witnessing for Christ (v. 42).

They declared, "We know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world." They confessed to the woman that their belief was not then due to her testimony, but to having heard him.

Colds are common because people are careless. Prompt use of aspirin will always check a cold. Or relieve your cold at any stage. And genuine aspirin can't hurt you. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin at the first indication of a cold, and that's usually the end of it. If every symptom hasn't disappeared in a few hours, repeat. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. Take enough to give complete relief. And if your throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in water and gargle away all soreness. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for colds, headaches, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis. Millions who used to suffer from these things have found winter comfort in aspirin.

Mountains of Mystery

South America has a moaning mountain. At certain seasons a deep note booms from Mt. El Bromados in the Chilean Andes. Another curious mountain exists in Nevada, in the United States. It gives out a note resembling at first the jingling of bells, and ending with a deep organ-like swell. In both cases the sounds are due to a peculiar formation of the earth, which under certain conditions of weather allows the separate particles to rub against each other and so produce uncanny effects. Elgo Island, off the Scottish coast, has its "singing sands." In England there is a mountain which howls. This is Cross Fell in Westmorland, where local conditions produce a gale and an awe-inspiring scream that at times can be heard for miles.

Education in China

Until very recent years very few people in China received any education, and the education of this few was confined to a so-called classical system. Probably one of the most outstanding of the new cultural forces in China is the new educational system. The most revolutionary changes of this system are the granting of educational facilities to women and the introduction of co-education in primary schools. Of vast number of Chinese characters, 1,000 of the most essential have been selected for use in the people's schools, and are exclusively used in the writing of appropriate popular books.

Newspapers Are Necessary To Protect Public

The following article by Senator G. L. Caswell, managing director of the Iowa Press Association why newspapers are necessary in guarding public affairs recently appeared in the Inland Printer:

Every newspaper in the United States which has any considerable amount of official and legal publications as a substantial part of its revenue may look for serious attempts to cut out and curtail such legal publications during the winter and following legislative sessions. The urge for tax reduction has hit every state and strange as it may seem, there are many alleged statesmen who view newspaper and other publicity regarding public affairs as just so much expense to the taxpayers.

The history of practically every state will show that one of the first necessities to develop after the official organization and setup of the state government was that of publicity for all official doings. Adventurers, money-grabbers, even down right criminals sometimes got into official positions in the county and state departments. Land agents and railroad promoters, contractors, educators, engineers, and what-not all began working games on the serious-minded but unsophisticated settlers. Realizing this, the voters of the early days saw that publicity would be the light that would warn and also guide them in public affairs. Crude and circumscribed as were all early day newspapers, they did afford publicity, and about the only publicity available to the people at the time. Thus lawmakers devised statutes that would require reports from officials in the public prints, and it was this publicity more than law or order that protected the settlers in all the states from suffering enormous ravages of their public treasuries.

Now the tendency is the other way—public officials and taxpayers alike are inclined to resent the fact that the newspapers charge for official publications. Fraud and corruption in public office are rare, while the bookkeeping systems and report forms required of public officers are more relied upon to disclose error and to prevent embezzlement. Naturally, then, the taxpayers and legislators take a different slant toward the expense of publicity and the cost thereof, feeling that there is less urgent need for it now than in the early days of the nation.

The fact remains that it is this publicity more than anything else that deters the rascal and the clever schemer from originating new ways of beating the public treasury. He may falsify the books and fool accountants for a few years, but when in the newspapers a permanent record of motions, resolutions, promotion and development enterprises, contracts, payments of bills, and reports of poor-farm managers and of school superintendents is required the taxpayers themselves are the first to see and question anything that smells of corruption.

For alleged statesmen now to pander to a demand of demagogues or schemers to reduce or wipe out publicity of official matters will, as sure as springtime, bring about more public losses, official scandal, and public expense than would ten times the expense of the official publicity which is now required.

It should be the duty and function of newspaper and editorial organizations to watch and stop this new development against the public welfare—not that it may mean less revenue to the newspapers, but that it will work toward loss and scandal in public affairs. Incidentally, newspapers may hope and desire that a higher rate of pay may be provided for the use of their columns, but higher or lower, newspapers will never fail the public in their jealous guardianship of the people's interests.

Many Candidates In Race For States Attorney

Attorney William R. McCabe, former mayor of Lockport and a member of the state legislature for 12 years, has tossed his hat in the Will County political ring and will be a Republican candidate for the office of state's attorney.

Attorney McCabe, who will oppose present state's attorney Hjalmar Rehn for the Republican nomination, was first elected to the state legislature in 1912. He served six terms, being re-elected in 1914, 1916, 1918, 1920 and 1922.

In 1923 Mr. McCabe was elected mayor of Lockport and while he served in that capacity did much for the advancement of that city's interests.

Before his entrance into politics and admittance to the practice of law, Mr. McCabe was a newspaper man for 10 years. He entered the newspaper business as a member of the editorial staff of the old Joliet Republican, and was later identified with the Joliet News and the Joliet Herald, before those papers were combined.

At the present time he is a member of the Republican Central committee of Will County.

While no official announcements have been made to date the names of three other attorneys have been mentioned as possible candidates for state's attorney. Elmer H. Bieffeldt, who opposed Mr. Rehn for the nomination four years ago, may run again. Charles Blim has been frequently mentioned as a candidate and it is rumored in political circles that John Cowing may enter the race with the backing of several persons of influence in Joliet township politics.

Announcement by Governor Louis L. Emmerson that he will not seek re-election, and the entrance of Omer N. Custer of Galesburg in the gubernatorial race this week is expected to result in increased activity in political camps of Will County with in the next few weeks.

Attorneys Gustaf B. Erickson and P. Francis Boetto are in charge of the organization of the Will County forces of Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, the first candidate for governor to announce.

At the present time it is not definitely known who will head the organization of former Governor Len Small in this county. It is said by lieutenants of his previous administrations that his Will County campaign will not be headed by any person who figured prominently in his previous campaigns here.

Indications at the present time are that the names of at least three Lockport citizens will be on the county and state ticket for the Republican nomination in April. Dr. E. A. Kingston, coroner, is expected to seek re-election and Attorney Joseph Keig may enter the race for the state legislature from the 41st district, comprising Will and DuPage counties.

Sermon, "The Great Challenge of Humility"

The young people are deserving of the greatest commendation for their service last Sunday. We extend this, and also a request for another service in the near future.

This Sunday evening at 7:30 the first quarterly conference will be held. District Superintendent Hammett will preside. As a part of the service the pageant "Samuel" will be presented. Twelve young people are taking part in the pageant and they plan to tell the story in a style fitting the subject.

Come and bring some one with you.

Dime a Day Is Baby Star's Pay

ALTHOUGH five-year-old Dickie Moore is now a full fledged moving picture star, making more money than lots of men, he goes to school like any other boy of his age and finds reading, writing and arithmetic much harder than acting before the cameras. Dickie spends three hours every week-day during the winter in the Little Red Schoolhouse on the movie lot and sometimes, when no pictures are in production, he is the only boy in his class. He regards the movies as a sort of game, much more fun than school. He gets a dime every day he works well and a new toy whenever a picture is finished, which pleases him immensely. Dickie is making his radio debut in one of the forthcoming programs of the Radio Newsreel of Hollywood which will feature the film lot schoolhouse. And when he grows up and is through school this young star says he wants to be a garbage man so he can wear white gloves.

Better Breakfasts

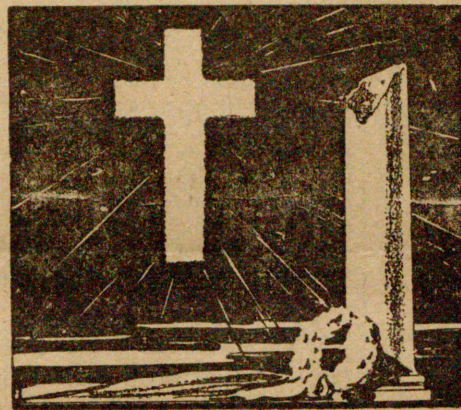

IN making your plans for the winter it is just as important to lay in a goodly supply of sustaining breakfast menus as it is to see that the furnace or steam-heating apparatus is in order, or that there is plenty of coal and wood on hand. One type of fuel heats the house and the other the body—which would you say was the more important?

Just about November the family develops a man-sized winter appetite—everybody wants a good breakfast and needs one. It doesn't make any difference whether the order of the day is business, school or stay-at-home, when the sparkling November sunlight shines in on the breakfast table, when a fire in the house feels good and the home becomes a cozy refuge in a brilliant wintry world, then is the moment to be prepared with "better breakfasts." Here is one which answers that description:

Grape Fruit Halves
Corned Beef Hash
with Poached Eggs
Toast Coffee Apple Butter

Corned Beef Hash with Poached Eggs: Mix one twelve-ounce can corned beef, two cups finely chopped boiled potatoes and quarter cup milk; season to taste. Flatten out in a skillet with a little hot fat, and brown well on one side, turn over and brown on the other. Slide out onto a hot platter and lay six hot poached eggs on top. Serves six.*

COLD ... AGAIN!

How often does it happen to you?

Feeling good . . . all ready to wash up and shave . . . and then only a cold stream from the hot water faucet.

It's a sure way to start the day wrong.

But here's a tip. You can start these days right by having an automatic gas water heater installed in your home. Then you'll have plenty of hot water for washing and shaving. Plenty for bathing and everything else, too. Every day . . . all day . . . without waiting.

Better think it over. This luxury of having all the hot water you want the minute you want it costs comparatively little—far less, probably, than you are now spending for many incidentals that bring nothing like the comfort and convenience automatic hot water service brings.

See your LOCAL PLUMBER or your PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY STORE for all the facts.

Mokena School News

Last Friday night, the Mokena gym was the scene of four interesting basketball games that kept everybody on their toes until the last shot was fired.

The first game was played by the Cardinals and Bruins who are boys of fourth, fifth, and sixth grades. W. Lauffer led the Bruins to victory over the Cardinals led by O. Lauffer. The final score was 15-7, although the Cards were climbing fast in the last quarter. Five minutes more of play would have shown some fast playing.

The second game was between the Tinley Park grade boys and the Mokena grade boys. The Mokena boys came out of the first half leading Tinley Park by a score of 12-4 and victory was almost in their hands. In the last half the Tinley Park boys tied the score 20-20 and, just before the last quarter ended, made a basket defeating Mokena 22-20.

The next game was between the Mokena High School second team and Manhattan High School second team and it proved to be a very exciting game. The Mokena boys kept well in the lead until the last quarter when the Manhattan boys tied them 13-13 making an overtime game. At this high point Muehler sunk the winning basket and Mokena held them down for the rest of the overtime ending the game with a score of 15-13.

The last game between the Manhattan High School first team and the Mokena High School first team was won by Manhattan. The Mokena boys fought hard all through the game but the superior weight and height of Manhattan was against them and although they crept upon them in the last half they could not defeat them as Manhattan had too big a lead. The final score was 35-24.

On Friday January 22, the Mokena Bruins and Cardinals united are to play the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades of the Orland Park grade school; the grade school girls of Mokena play the grade school girls of Crete. The grade school boys of Mokena play the grade school boys of Crete, and the high school boys of Mokena play the Crete Alumni.

These games are expected to be very exciting and both teams hope for victory.

On Tuesday, January 26, the Chaney girls play the Mokena girls, the Chaney grade school boys play the Mokena grade school boys, and the Chaney Alumni play the Mokena high school.

12—A Scout is reverent.

He is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties, and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion.

Some of the things for which points will be given in the contest which is to be started this week:

Tests passed, Projects, Attendance. New applicants accepted by troop, Hike, Best good turn as voted by troop, Winner of coming field rally.

Remember Back When?

The girls would let a young man call because he smoked cigars with pretty bands, to swell the collection, gathered to make an ash tray.

Remember when the girls wore cotton stockings and no one knew it.

Remember when they used to have the old horse hair stuffed furniture and the boys used their hair for tooth picks.

Remember when we used to speak in a low tone about girls who painted. Now they paint and hang wall paper also.

Remember when the girls used to wear a velvet ribbon around the neck, called a bow catcher, it was always black, that was an excuse for a dirty neck.

Remember when the girls used to wear long elbow gloves at evening gatherings, also wore them at night with glycerine for chapped arms.

To the readers of Ann Lott's column. For the best (Remember When) sent in, Ann will present the winner with a box of candy. Just address Ann Lott in care of News-Bulletin, Mokena, Ill.

New Cooling System Answers Farmers Prayer

The Milk Producer's Prayer: "Give me a good market for my milk and cream, and a good price, and please eliminate all surplus."

Answer:

Every producer can produce quality "A" milk, can maintain a market, can get the highest price, and eliminate surplus by producing milk with a low bacteria count and fine flavor. This will increase consumption and make it both profitable and pleasant to be in the dairy business.

Compare the price of fresh eggs and storage eggs; green, well cured alfalfa as compared with musty, off color alfalfa.

Hydro-Vac milk means quality milk. This simple process is operated by cold water. It cools and aerates by forcing cool, washed air through the milk and draws out the hot foul air by vacuum from the sealed shipping can. Hydro-Vac assures low bacteria count, fine flavor and increases the food value of milk.

Hydro-Vac is being used by the Marti Dairy at Mokena with good results.

ORLAND PARK

Rev. Paul T. Sanders, pastor of the Orland Park M. E. church, underwent an appendicitis operation at the Auburn Park hospital, Chicago, Tuesday morning. At latest reports he is getting along nicely. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

A missionary will occupy the pulpit of the M. E. church Sunday morning.

Barney Homerding and family whose home was destroyed by fire January 10th are now staying at the home of Dr. W. R. Schussler.

The village fire department is now equipped with one thousand feet of new fire hose. The fire department and the village board each paid one half of the total cost of the fire hose which was $850.

The auction sale held at the Mullinex home last Saturday afternoon was quite well attended.

Earl Homerding, residing on a farm two miles west of 159th street on Wolf Road will hold an auction sale on February 6th. Edw. Schmaedeke of Orland is the auctioneer.

A public sale was held on the B. F. Sayers farm tenanted by Joe Nasoo Thursday. Charles Erickson was the auctioneer.

The Chicago Irish-American Club of Chicago are building an addition to the club headquarters in Palos Park. The Lumber for the new addition is being furnished by the Beaty Lumber Co., yard at Orland Park. Work on the new Wm. Junker house is progressing nicely. A double garage will also be constructed.

ORLAND SCHOOL NOTES—

The High School had their mid-year examinations on Monday and Tuesday. The new semester commenced on Wednesday.

In a surprise fire-drill held on Monday, the school was emptied in the remarkably fast time of thirty-four seconds. This time shows the benefit of the constant drill and instruction. If any adults believe that children can not be efficient, they should watch the marvelous precision with which a school executes a fire-drill.

Mr. White led a group of the basketball squad of the high-school and the town into Chicago last Saturday night to witness the Chicago-Wisconsin basketball game.

The grammar room held a grab-bag party on Friday. A very hilarious and hugely enjoyable entertainment was had and was given by all. Frank Steinmetz and Leila Pomroy were in charge of arrangements. Eugene Utte was absent several days due to trachoma.

Under the leadership of the intermediate room, a cleanup campaign is being launched.

Oklahoma Girl Strong as Boy

"Louise Alice was fretful, nervous and all run-down from whooping cough," says Mrs. F. J. Kolar, 1730 West 22nd St., Oklahoma City, Okla. "The little I could force her to eat wouldn't ever digest. She became underweight, sallow and weak."

"Then I decided to try California Fig Syrup, and the results surprised me. Her bowels started working immediately, and in little or no time she was eating so she got to be a pest at the table, always asking us to pass things. Her weight increased, her color improved and she began to romp and play again like other children. Now she's the picture of health, and strong as a boy."

Pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable California Fig Syrup acts surely and quickly to cleanse your child's stomach and bowels of the souring waste that is keeping her half-sick, bilious, sallow, feverish, listless, weak and puny. But it's more than a laxative. It tones and strengthens the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. Ask for it by the full name, "California Fig Syrup," so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

Cashew Not a Nut

Comparatively unknown a few years ago, the cashew nut now rivals the walnut and pecan in popularity and may be bought in almost any drug or grocery store. Last year this country consumed more than 5,000,000 pounds of cashews. The cashew "nut" is not really a nut, says T. Ralph Robinson, of the United States Department of Agriculture, but the seed of a fleshy fruit borne in clusters on a large evergreen tropical tree. Curiously, the seed is attached to the outside, at the lower end of the fruit. The cashew tree thrives in Porto Rico and other West Indian islands, and a few trees have fruited in Florida.

THE STORY

Six bandits hold up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the Mackenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance, Sergt. Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at the news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Still, furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father. Alan leads his expedition up the big Aloska. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan fails to capture the bandits and returns to Fort Endurance. Haskell blames him for the failure and Alan is allowed to buy out of the Mounted on condition that he absolve Haskell from blame. Alan arranges with Dad Pence and Hardsack to look after Joyce's safety.

"Joyce," he instructed her, "I'd like for you, there at the trading post, to question those Indians and metis when they bring in peltry. You might pick up some information about those six men."

"I'll do it, Alan. And if there's anything else, to help you—"

"There isn't except to keep your courage up and be careful of yourself. Joyce, if you'll promise to take care of yourself there on the Aloska, I'll go away feeling a mighty lot happier. I'll be worrying about you."

"I'll get along, Alan," she said simply.

As she gave him her hand, wishing him good fortune on his venture, Alan had a vision of the lonely, fear-torn weeks ahead of Joyce. He was all sympathy and tenderness for her—so brave a girl, so loyal to her dad, so spirited and pretty.

He was shaken with the temptation to tell Joyce of the secret and powerful circumstances which had torn him away from her and made inevitable his engagement to Elizabeth. He had done Joyce a wrong; he owed her a confession and an explanation of his motive. But there were reasons that kept him silent. He had fought that fight in his own conscience; he had acted deliberately. To tell Joyce of it now would avail nothing. He felt that Joyce, however much she had loved him once, had gone back to a casual friendship with him now, and a resurrection of their intimacy would be painful to them both.

With a handclasp, a final word of cheer about her father, he stepped into the motor canoe, started the engine, headed the boat out from the shore. Looking back, he watched Joyce's slender figure grow more and more wraith-like in the mist until his eyes no longer could see her.

Over at the MacMillan trading post Joyce was awaiting a visit from Bill Hardsack. A young Loucheux, John Tabanask, had brought a note from Bill, saying he would be along some time late this evening.

This last week had been a feverishly busy one for her. With no hesitation she was sacrificing the entire trading stock. Word of her good bargains had gone out by moccasin telegraph, and the peltry was rolling in beyond all her expectations. Her days were from twenty to twenty-four hours long. Hasty meals for herself and old Dad Pence. Sleep in broken bits when she could snatch an hour or so. Sorting and grading furs as expertly as any man. It was work for any two men, and she was doing it lone-handed, earning the fur-dollars to fight her dad's battle.

Faithfully carrying out Alan's instructions, she had done a bit of detective work on her own account. But she failed to glean the slightest hint of information.

The mystery of the bandits' sudden appearance engrossed her, as it had Alan; and with good reason it made her keenly uneasy. Those men were hiding in the Thal-Azzah, not many hours distant. Knowing in her heart that her father was innocent, she believed that they had put that fateful pack of furs in the shed because of some animus against him. Their hostility might extend to her, his daughter; and they might make some attempt against her. There were times, when she thought of those vicious brutal criminals so near her, that she wanted to flee back to the safety of the post and the mothering of Mrs. Drummond.

Before she left Endurance, Bill had told her that Alan had bought out and had severed relations with the Force for good and all. That was the news which Joyce had been brooding about. Elizabeth had wanted him to get out of service. He was out now. Elizabeth had wanted him to take that Victoria job. He probably would take it now. Elizabeth had had her way with him. The thing which had held her and Alan apart no longer existed.

For more than a year Joyce had seen Alan Baker slipping away from her, little by little. She had fought for her secret hopes as one will fight in the face of death. She wanted Alan! Her days were like a passionate cry for him. He was the meaning and purpose of life to her, and she could no longer bear to live under her racking doubt. She, too, had come to the parting of the ways, and must take some irrevocable step.

In the twilight she heard the drone of Bill's motor canoe down the Aloska. When the craft swung around a bend, she stood up and waved. Catching sight of her on the jutting rock, Bill glided in alongside.

He held a warm place in her heart. He had a man's stubborn will power, he was honest and open as daylight, he was loyal clean through. Joyce knew that Bill loved her, in a dogged hopeless way, asking nothing more than to do favors for her and be always dependable when she needed some one. She was sorry for him, terribly sorry he loved her. For his sake she had several times rebuffed him; but it hurt Bill so visibly that she had stopped.

She invited him: "Bill, let's go up to the post. You're tired. And I'll get you a bite to eat."

"I can't, Joyce," he reluctantly refused. "I've got to light out for En-duration. I just wanted to drop past and see that everything is all right with you. How've you been making out?"

"Better than I even expected. I've taken in an awful lot of furs."

"That's good. But I mean, any trouble with these 'breeds or Smokies'?" He spoke rather belligerently toward a hypothetical enemy of hers.

"Not the slightest bit," Joyce assured him. That was not exactly true; a couple of incidents of the last week had been a little ugly. But she felt she could guard herself against those cowardly men.

She asked rather hesitantly, "Has anything happened at Fort Endurance, Bill?" She was thinking of Elizabeth waiting there; and that beating question crowded out even her father's trouble. It took an effort to speak of it. Bill knew more of Alan's plans than she did. He might know the answer to that question.

He said: "No, nothing much has happened. I moved up to Alan's cabin. Haskell has made Whipple a corporal. Imagine that! The new doctor for Hershel Island came past on his way down north, and looked at Larry. He couldn't do any more than Father Claverly has done. Larry's getting some strength back, and that chest wound is past the danger point; but his leg is all busted. The doctor said Larry 'ud be permanently crippled. No hope of anything better."

"Have they sent—Is Dad still there?"

"Yes. We can't spare a man to take him out. He'll be there a week or ten days yet."

"You'll tell him about my good luck here, Bill? And tell him I'll be with him as soon as I close out this post?"

Bill nodded. Personally he hoped that this news might lift Dave MacMillan out of his despondency. Dave's state of mind was causing Bill anxiety. Resenting any kindness, he had sunk into a sullen mood, uncaring, hopeless—a man brooding self-destruction.

Joyce forced herself to ask, "Have you heard anything at all of Alan, Bill?"

"No, not a word. I don't expect to for some time."

"You must know where he is and what he's doing. . . ."

Bill realized she was asking him to tell her of Alan's venture. He wanted to tell her; and he knew he could trust her; but Alan had asked him not to let her know where he'd gone, and Alan might have personal reasons for it.

He lied: "No, I don't know. I'd just be guessing."

"But he's coming back, sometime, to Endurance?" Joyce persisted.

"He may come back and may not. But not to stay. He's out of service, broke away complete. He turned his cabin and things over to me. He isn't intending to come back. I know definite. He's going to take that job in Victoria. Told me. One of the last things he said."

There was a moment's silence. Bill looked at Joyce curiously. She was staring down at the rock, plucking with trembling fingers at the wolf-foot moss. She was pale. "Did Alan say—" the words came slowly, like reluctant footsteps—"say anything about when he'll get married?"

"He didn't exactly say when, but it'll be as soon as he's carried through this scheme of his."

A question came from Joyce:

"He and—Elizabeth—have decided definitely, then, Bill?"

"Yes. She's waiting for him to come for her or send for her. They've made plans to be married in Edmonton and have their honeymoon in the Selkirk and then go on over to Victoria."

Joyce asked one last question. She asked it calmly, without faltering or even pausing on the precipice edge.

"Did Elizabeth say that, or did Alan?"

"Alan said it. I overheard them, that night he left. They planned it together, there in his cabin. . . ."

Joyce was aroused by old Dad Pence calling for her. Raising her head from her arms, she looked around. Gropingly she realized that she was there on the jutting rock, numbed with cold—with a cold that was more than physical.

Dawn had come. The dark hours had passed. It took her moments to realize. Time had stood still for her since she told Bill good-by.

Before going up the river bank she had the presence of mind to go down to the water edge and bathe her face and hands and smooth back her hair.

She went back to the trading store with old Pence, and prepared breakfast for him. Over his birch-marl pipe old Pence began whittling again at the "story-stick" he was carving these days. The stick was a long-standing ambition of his, for with his razor-keen, six-bladed knife he was carving the story of his life. And he was going about it in earnest, carving steadily every day. It was as though he had some dim foreknowledge of the black wings hovering—a warning to hurry.

Noticing Joyce's exceeding paleness and her exhaustion, he bade her:

"Now you got to go an' rest, gal. I'll tend to 'furs this mornin', if anybody comes."

Joyce went into her room. It seemed so cold; she could not get warm; the chill seemed to have pierced her through and through. She kindled a fire in her small sheet-iron stove and put in wood, and then lay down on the bed.

From the dresser Alan's picture was looking down at her. She did not glance away, but looked at it steadily, as she lay there so motionless and still.

Experts See No Future for Hemp Production

Hemp, once a profitable crop in this country, has dwindled in importance, and the vehicle through which it has lost its market was the principal market in former years. It is estimated that in the early Colonial days it took the product of 1,000 acres of hemp to make the ropes necessary to outfit a single sailing vessel of any size.

Now ships bring jute from India and this importation, due to its much lower price, has driven hemp from the market to a large extent. In spite of this loss of market, glowing pictures of prosperity to be had from hemp growing are painted for farmers who have had no experience with the crop. Agents with something to sell have induced many farmers to attempt crops, but little hope of success is held out by Department of Agriculture officials, who point out that by no means is the general run of land suitable for hemp production. Even if it were, there still remains the fact that the demand for hemp is more than filled by present sources, with the result that the prices are too low to make a crop an attractive proposition financially for the grower.—Washington Star.

Noted Scenic Route

The Indian river is a large lagoon in the eastern part of Florida, in Brevard and Volusia counties. It connects with the Halifax river at Titusville and extends 100 miles southeast to the ocean at Indian River. The width of the Indian river varies from 300 feet to 3 miles and is navigable for vessels drawing 5 feet. The river is famous for its beautiful tropical scenery and for the oranges which are grown on its banks.

No Need to Sigh for Those "Good Old Days"

Factory working hours varied with the sun back in the 1850s, for candles provided unsatisfactory illumination. Each employee was given a "bell card," showing what time the factory starting bell would ring for each day.

A typical card of the period, issued by the Robbins & Lawrence company, machinery builders of Windsor, Vt., and reproduced in the seventy-fifth anniversary number of the Iron Age, reveals that startling time ranged from 6 in the summer months, to 7:26 during the winter. Stopping time, too, followed the sun. From 6 in the summer, and as early as 4:42 in December. The average for the year was ten working hours.

But getting to work at 6 was not the worst of it. For some unknown reason the "wake-up" bell was rung an hour and a half earlier, at the ungodly hour of 4:30. Come to think of it, they probably needed the full 90 minutes between rising and getting to work. For they had no safety razors, no gas stoves to boil the coffee or quickly cook the eggs, no trolleys, busses or flivvers to shorten the trip from home to shop.

No wonder our grandfathers were bearded gents. Imagine hopping out of a nice warm bed with the thermometer at 10 above, inside and outside the house, lighting an ice-cold stove, waiting for the water to boil, and drawing with shivering hand a straight razor over a stiff beard with a gooseflesh foundation. Those were the good old days!

World Prone to Judge Value by Appearance

Fifty years ago it was said that only a millionaire could afford to be careless in his attire. That exception no longer holds. Today every one, rich or poor, who expects to keep a place in the civic procession, must give heed to his personal appearance. The nearer a man is to the anxious seat, the more marked should be the straight creases in his trousers.

Progress in every white-collar line of business depends to a considerable extent on keeping the collar white. In other words, personal appearance, other things being equal, is the determining factor whether the road ahead will lead up or down. Slovenliness in thought and action—and such a suggestion is fatal in the modern business world. Competition was never so keen and he who would meet it successfully must dress the part.

Fortunately, in hard or easy times, the law of compensation remains on the job. When money and work are harder to get, clothing of good quality is easier to obtain. Never did the dollar go as far in ministering to personal appearance. Never was the opportunity more patent for stocking the wardrobe before the good times return and clothes will no longer be procurable at present low prices. And if good times are further delayed, to be well dressed is the best whip for beating the devil of depression round the stump.

Polonius' advice to his son is even more applicable in America today than it was in the old realm of Denmark:

The Realist and the Sea

S. S. Slog, the noted bibliophile, was condemning on the Lafayette a realistic novelist.

"The man's view of life," he said, "reminds me of a servant girl who had never seen the ocean. Finally she was taken to Ocean City, and her mistress led her down to the beach and said, waving her hand over the great windy spread of rolling waters and white sands and wheeling gulls:

"There it is, Maggie. What do you think of it?"

"Phew! said Maggie. 'It smells like stale oysters, don't it?'"

Kit Carson Memento

The words "Kit Carson, 1848," were recently found carved into a tree near Mud lakes, in the Eldorado National forest. The historical discovery was made by a United States forest service trail crew. Six inches of new wood had grown over the original blaze. Another tree carved by the famous pioneer is still standing in the Kit Carson pass.

The Cop and the Anthem—II

Drawn by John Hix

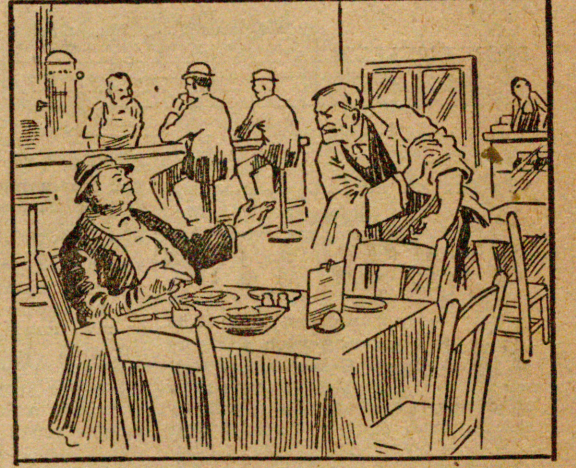

Soapy turned off Broadway; he wanted three months of food and shelter and knew one way to get it. At Sixth avenue there was a conspicuous window. Soapy took a cobbler and dashed it through the glass. People came running—

Led by a policeman, Soapy stood still. He smiled at the sight of the brass buttons. The cop hardly looked at Soapy. Men who smash windows take to their heels. Down the street a man ran to catch a car. The cop took after him.

Soapy, with disgust in his heart, loafed along. Across the street was a restaurant of no great pretensions. It catered to large appetites and modest purses. Into this place Soapy took his accusive shoes and sat at a table.

He consumed beefsteak, flapjacks, doughnuts and pie. And then to the waiter, he said: "Get busy and call a copy—and don't keep a gentleman waiting." "No cop for youse," said the waiter with a voice like butter cakes.

THEY've got to be good to last like this song has. It was written a long time ago by Abe Lyman and Gus Arnheim together with Arthur Freed, and its background is as colorful as its melody. It first became popular when Abe Lyman was creating such a furor at the Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles, Abe featuring it on nearly all of his programs. Its popularity spread, and at one time it was numbered among the country's leading songs.

The years rolled by and Lyman journeyed East to even bigger triumphs. The song stayed on at the Cocoanut Grove, however, becoming a regular tradition and each successive baton wielder or singer has, by popular request, included it in his repertoire.

Your Telephone comes from

Since the days when daring Carthaginian mariners took long and perilous journeys to obtain cargoes of tin from the mines of Cornwall, this metal has played a leading role in the drama of human progress.

Enormous quantities of tin are used in modern industries, notably that of canning. One of its most important uses, however, is as a constituent of the solder used throughout the telephone system wherever permanent electrical connections are necessary—in the telephone instrument itself, where wires are attached to connectors, relays and coils of the switchboard, and at scores of other points.

Millions upon millions of soldered connections help to make America's nationwide telephone service more efficient and more dependable. To form solder, tin is alloyed with lead.

Tin is also used, in the form of foil, in condensers and, alloyed with lead, in the sheath of certain types of cables.

Most of the world's tin supply comes from the Malay Peninsula, from the Dutch East Indies, and from Bolivia.

FORMAL OPENING OF WASHINGTON FETES

Wm. G. Thon, State Chairman,
Makes State-Wide Appeal to Municipalities and Citizens.

William G. Thon, Chairman of the Illinois George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission, and Representative

William G. Thon.

In the General Assembly for Oak Park, today issued a call to the municipalities and citizens all over the State of Illinois to join in celebrating the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, during the year of 1932.

His statement, released today, formally opening the campaign to enlist the interest of the municipalities and citizens of Illinois follows:

"Our nation is organizing to observe, with fitting ceremony, the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Congress has created the George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission with the President its Chairman, and in each state a like commission will have charge of the program.

Governor Louis L. Englemann of Illinois has honored me with the Chairmanship for our State, and it is in that capacity that I send this call to all our municipalities and citizens. The period of observance will extend from February 22, 1932, to next Thanksgiving Day.

There is imperative need that we return to the precepts of Washington. Never since his day has any other approached him in clear vision of the rights of the people, the proper relations of our government with foreign nations, the duty of preparedness, and the unselfish service due from every citizen to his country.

In many respects we have turned from his teachings. We have violated the Spirit of the Constitution, that priceless heritage he left us. We have not regarded his words of caution in our relations with other nations, and have ignored his warning that the best way to make sure of peace is to be prepared for war.

Too many of our children have not been given full insight into Washington's character, and what his courage, his energy, his wisdom and his steadfastness meant to our nation. What wonder, then, that some of them hearken to the alien who claims that our government is founded on wrong principles, and should be overthrown, though no people in all the history of the world has ever been so blessed as we, under the government founded by Washington.

As one who honors and reveres Washington above all men, as a humble citizen who wants to see his country resolve anew to follow his wise precepts and noble example, as your Chairman entrusted with this high duty, I call upon the executive head of every Illinois municipality—city, town, village—to form at once a committee to carry on vigorously through the coming year a program of rejoicing that God gave our nation in its hour of need such a man as George Washington; of earnest study of his wise teachings and his exemplification of them in his life; of resolute and thorough return to the principles he laid down for our government, that our Nation may not fall in ruin but may endure and prosper and continue to hold aloft, undimmed, that torch of liberty which he handed us to bless our people and light the way of the world."

FRANKFORT

The Ladies Aid of the St. Peter Evangelical church will hold their meeting and serve the birthday "coffee" Thursday, January 28 in the afternoon. Those who will serve are: Mrs. August Schroeder, Mrs. Anna Keller, Mrs. Bartel Heisner, Mrs. Charles Heisner, Mrs. Arthur Marti, Mrs. William Eisenbrand, Mrs. Louis Ebert, Mrs. Mary Scheer, Miss Lena Bankow, Mrs. Herman Schoop, Mrs. Jake Mager, Miss Viola Lankenau and Mrs. Wm. Wischover. After supper a play entitled "How They Grew" will be given. The leading characters will be Mary Neiland, Marie Schmuhl, Edna Hohenstein, Loretta Schoop, Ruth Neiland, Luella Heusner, Edith Wischover and Dorothy Vollrath. Mrs. Wm. Wischover is the chairman of the program committee.

Alex Wilson, aged 54 years, died in Chicago Tuesday after a three weeks illness. He is survived by his widow and three children.

Mrs. Helena Hauck nee Feil, aged 65 years, died January 18 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Richard Riemer in Joliet. Mrs. Hauck was a sister of Jacob Feil of Frankfort.

Mrs. Hauck is survived by five daughters, three brothers, Jacob of Frankfort, Henry of Chicago and Valentine of Manhattan and eight grand children. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the First Lutheran church in Joliet, Rev. John Goeken, officiating. Burial was in the Elmhurst cemetery. A number of Frankfort people attended the funeral. She also was a sister of the late John Feil of Frankfort.

The hearing regarding the Michigan Central subway and closing of the cemetery road crossing at Frankfort was up before the Commerce Commission in their Chicago office but was postponed until Feb. 11th.
